Focus of program: Runs locally, low barrier to entry, collaborative and social. A replacement to Quizlet (which is now paid monthly), which has since been ridden with ads, and garbage. A flashcard focus.

Aspects from Quizlet:
- Free, sharable
- Flashcard focused, customizable
- Easy access through browser
- Extremely polished, modern, and intuitive interface. You can start studying in seconds without reading a manual.

Aspects from Kahoot:
- Fun competition among classmates (leaderboard)
- Easy to understand, approved by teachers
- Teacher portal to create quizzes
- Zero friction participation

Aspects from Jackbox.tv:
- Gamemodes are fun
- Stance on fun because noncensorship allowing for freedom in customization, can be used as a platform for academics and comedy for their community (streamers)

Aspects from Anki:
- "Buy it for Life" Reliability: It handles massive decks (10,000+ cards) without slowing down. It works offline and syncs freely between devices.
